She is the President and a member of the Board of Directors of the International Association of Pastel Societies, and is dedicated to promoting the medium of pastel.

Indoor Studio Techniques and Plein Air Painting

The five-day workshop, sponsored by the Friends of The Wynne Home Arts Center, will be a combination of days indoors and outdoor sessions, weather permitting.

We'll begin with at least two days indoors, where we will focus on techniques of using the pastel medium and work through exercises relating to painting from photographic reference. We have a wonderful indoor space for the class, with a covered area just outdoors and views of the lake. (Photos below.)

Demonstrations each day will illustrate how to utilize a specific style of underpainting to block in your painting and better understand the flaws of photography. After each day's demonstration, the artists will work from their own photos to follow the exercise, with personal assistance from the instructor.

After that, if it's not too hot, rainy or windy, we'll move outdoors to paint at least in the early morning hours (photos left and below are potential locations). Short demonstrations applicable to the subject of the day—such as how to paint reflections, how to handle foliage, or creating a feeling of distance—will help you get started, followed by individual instruction at your easel. If the weather doesn't cooperate, we'll continue working indoors.

Artists working at any level of experience are welcome. Class is limited to 20 students. Tuition for the full five days is $500. A $100 non-refundable deposit is required to hold your space. (If the workshop is cancelled by the instructor, the deposit will be refunded.) After registration, a materials list will be provided so you can prepare for the workshop. (If you wish to pay by credit card, or if you can only attend the first 3 or 4 days of the workshop, please call Maggie at the number below.)

Students talk about workshops with Maggie Price:

"I've taken numerous workshops, but none as full of techniques and inspiration as this one."

— Virginia Gatlin, Oregon

"I got more out of just the first two days of this workshop than from any other workshop I've ever taken."

—Carol Christenson, Wisconsin

"I learned more in this one workshop than I had in my entire life prior to this..."

—Sydney, Australia workshop student

Thank you so much for the delightful adventure in Spain! I learned so much about plein air painting and probably never would have seriously tried it without the Spain experience. Having such a charming retreat at the Hotel Bandolero with gourmet meals and great laughs with new friends only enhanced the total experience.

—Caryl Joy Young, Arkansas
